Overview / Summary

The client approached Logic V after experiencing repeated setbacks with another IT provider during a major VMware-to-Hyper-V migration. The project had reached a critical point where improper configurations threatened system stability and operational uptime.

By stepping in with technical precision and clear communication, Logic V not only stabilized the migration but also introduced performance improvements and completed the project with zero unplanned downtime.

The success marked the beginning of a long-term partnership built on trust and proven technical execution.

Business Challenge & History

The client was facing serious obstacles completing a critical infrastructure migration.

- Configuration errors from a previous provider had caused instability and delayed project progress.
- Risk of downtime threatened essential business operations across multiple locations.
- Limited guidance and poor communication left the internal team uncertain about next steps.
